The Minneapolis-Journal.

MOTION-PLAY MAGAZINE

ROTOGRAVURE SECTION
VOL. 2 NO. 8

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.
SUNDAY, DECEMBER 25, 1921

A MERRY CHRISTMAS GREETING

ANITA STEWART, enduring favorite; each production strengthens her popularity. First National has featured her in "Playthings of Destiny," "Her Mad Bargain," and is completing "The Question of Honor."

Photo by Edward Thayer Monroe.

Christmas is Here—

MARY MILES MINTER, Realart star, is rewarded for staying up late to watch for Santa Claus.

CONSTANCE BINNEY, of Realart, adds another gift to her already overburdened Christmas tree.

Roses for remembrance; WANDA HAWLEY'S distant friend has said his greeting with flowers.

Would you like to have a doll for Christmas? Here's MAY McAVOY in Realart's "Baby Doll."

For her excellent work in "Wife Against Wife," and other recent successes, PAULINE STARKE merits arms full of gifts and greetings.

FAY TINCHER, of Christie Comedies, has settled down for a long winter's afternoon and is comfortably enjoying a holiday book.

GARETH HUGHES, the boyish Metro star, whose poetic temperament has been revealed on the stage and screen. His newest picture is "Stay Home."

FROM THE MANGER TO THE CROSS

A beautiful picture, made by the Vitagraph Company, and is a welcome revival at this season of the year. The scenes, connectedly, suggest epochal events in the life of Jesus of Nazareth, and were actually taken in the Holy Land, where the Immortal Nazarene was born, where once He lived, and where once He died. The photographs are of authentic locations, the professional actors less than a score and crowds of lesser characters are played by natives in native raiment. This picture is a masterpiece that has won the universal commendation and praise of the clergy and laymen.

TORA TEYE, one of the favorite stars of the Swedish Biograph Company.

JENNY HASSELQUIST, of the same company, who started her professional career as prima ballerina in Stockholm.

After all, there is only one ALICE LAKE, but the double exposure habit has fastened itself so permanently upon motion picture stars that Miss Lake just couldn't resist the temptation to fall in line and look at herself just as if she were somebody else. She has to do it anyway in her new Metro picture, "The Infamous Miss Revell."

She appears as two sisters, Julien Revell, who is "infamous" and Paula Revell, who could get by any board of moralistic censors. It's as Paula, with the St. Cecilia expression, that Miss Lake sits at the piano. The picture is a Dallas M. Fitzgerald production of a story by W. Carey Wonderly, adapted for the screen by Arthur J. Zellner.

Four for Remembrance—

Founded on one of Thomas Burke's "Limehouse Nights" stories, D. W. Griffith's "Dream Street" stands out as one of the artistic triumphs of the year. A story of dream people who look through wistful windows, or walk with visions on the street of dreams.

In making "Fool's Paradise" for Paramount, Cecil B. De Mille brought to his scenes his usual artistic touch. Mildred Harris, like an idol, sits cross-legged in a sumptuous Oriental temple, a reproduction of Wat Chang and Angkor Wat, two of the architectural wonders of the Orient.

A scene, rather reminiscent of a Cabanel painting, from Victor Seastrom's new photodrama, of the Italian Renaissance, "Judge Not," produced by the Swedish Biograph Company. Jenny Hasselquist and Gosta Ekman are the leading actors.

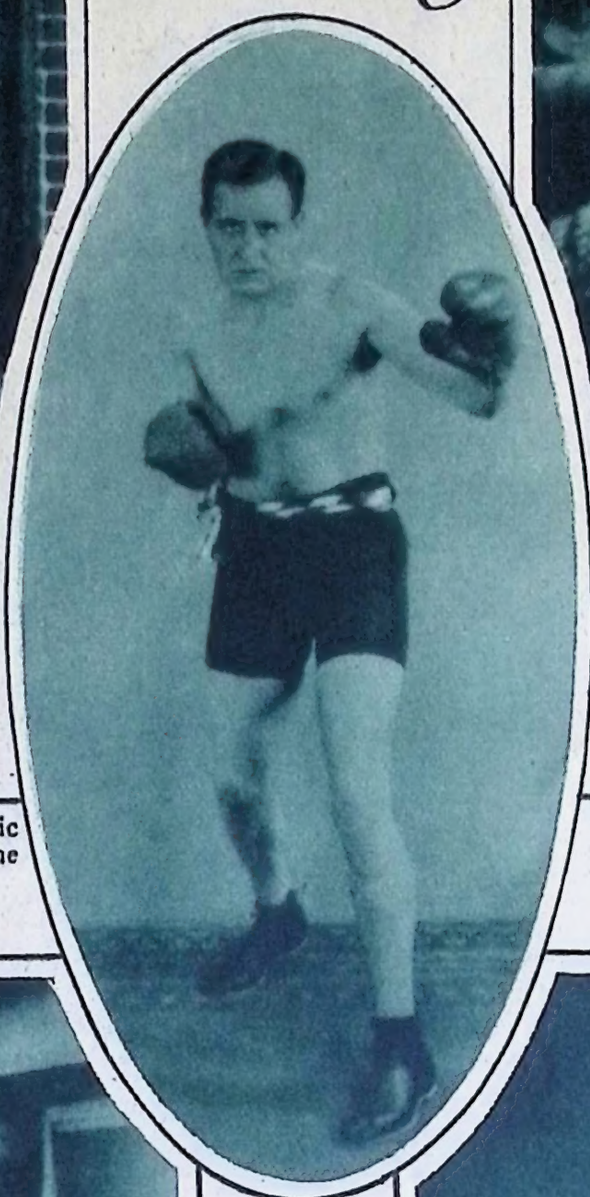
The motion picture industry progresses. Pictures that are rememberable because of their beauty are more frequent and are deemed of positive value. The art directors of the producing companies maintain that the motion play has an immeasureable effect in cultivating an aesthetic sense in our public. It is being made an art rather than an industry. Its constant trend toward beauty is potential in bringing loveliness before the public.

Mabel Ballin in "The Journey's End," a Hugo Ballin independent production. The poet, painter or musician frequently omits his best touch for the sake of the ultimate whole, so this scene was cut from the film to make a better ensemble.

CENTRE
PAGES

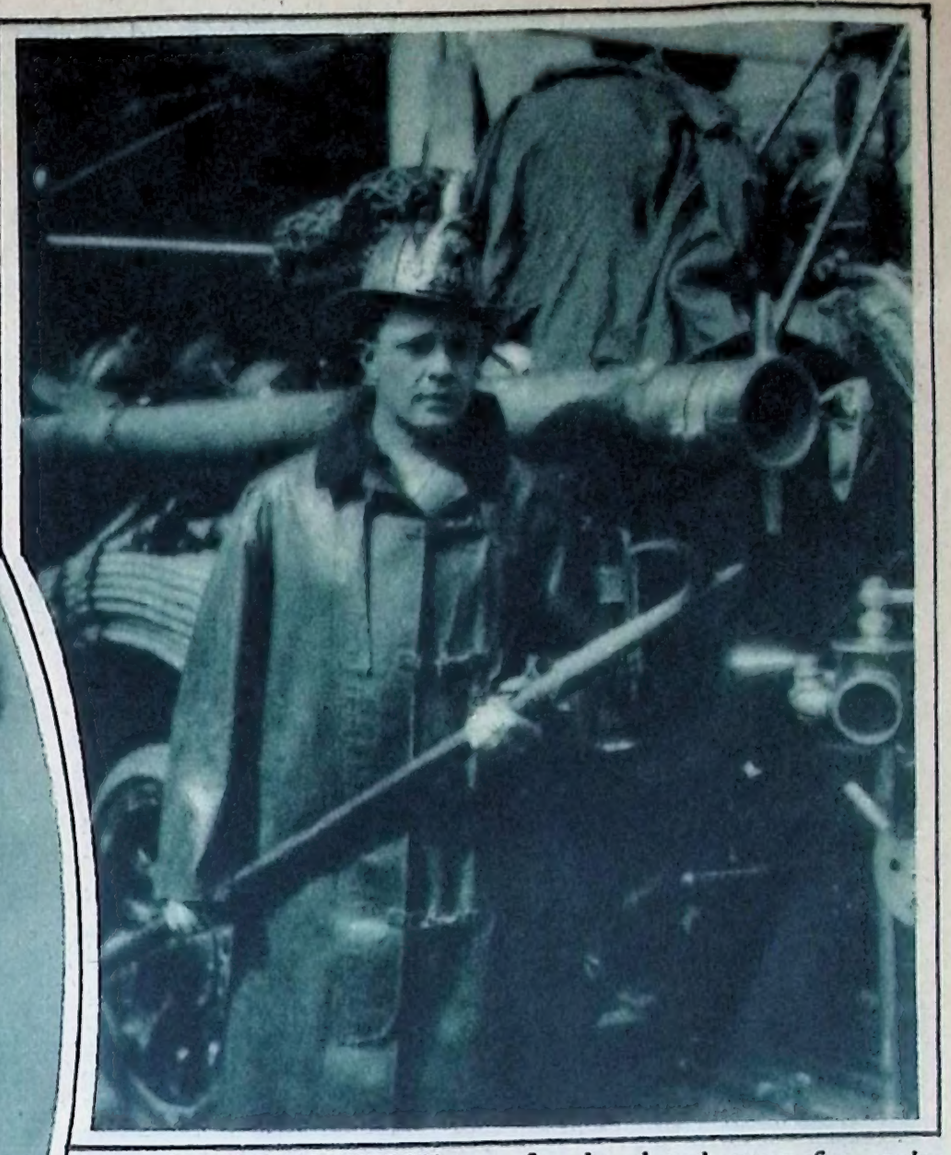
Attaining Early Ambitions

EUGENE O'BRIEN, at the tender age of six, attended a Catholic School. His ambition was to become a Monk. How handsome Gene would look today if he really donned the costume.



CONWAY TEARLE had a very delicate ambition. He wanted to be a champion prize fighter. This ambition was strong within him until he reached the fifteen year mark.

Selznick Stars.
Photos by Charles Duprez.



Ever since NILES WELSH was five he chased every fire engine within hearing. To this day Niles loves the life of a fireman. Here he is all dolled up waiting for something to explode.

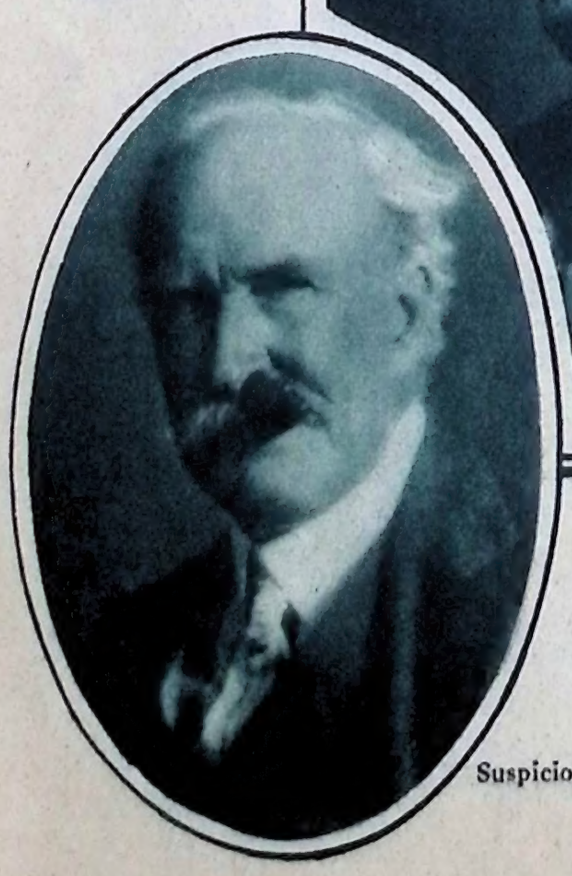
OWEN MOORE as a lad never could get quite enough to eat. His ambition to be a cook seemed a short cut to enough food. Here is Owen today, taking the jackets off the spuds.

When ELAINE HAMMERSTEIN was going to school, she just longed to be the school teacher. This is what she wanted to be, but the movie fan knows what she has become.

The Cigar Indicative

THEODORE ROBERTS, famous character actor in Paramount pictures, uses his ubiquitous cigar as an aid to express his emotions on the screen. Roberts and his cigar are synonymous.

Surprise



Suspicion

Dejection

Anger

Contentment.

Mr. Roberts has been before the public since the days of Robson, Crane and Fanny Davenport. He has played recently in "The Affairs of Anatol," and "Miss Lulu Bett."

For the Holiday Dance

Gorgeous gown worn by Corinne Griffith in Vitagraph's "Moral Fibre." Draped skirt of beaded charmeuse, lace bodice with semi over jacket and train of hand stenciled velvet, attached at shoulder line with ostrich tip band.

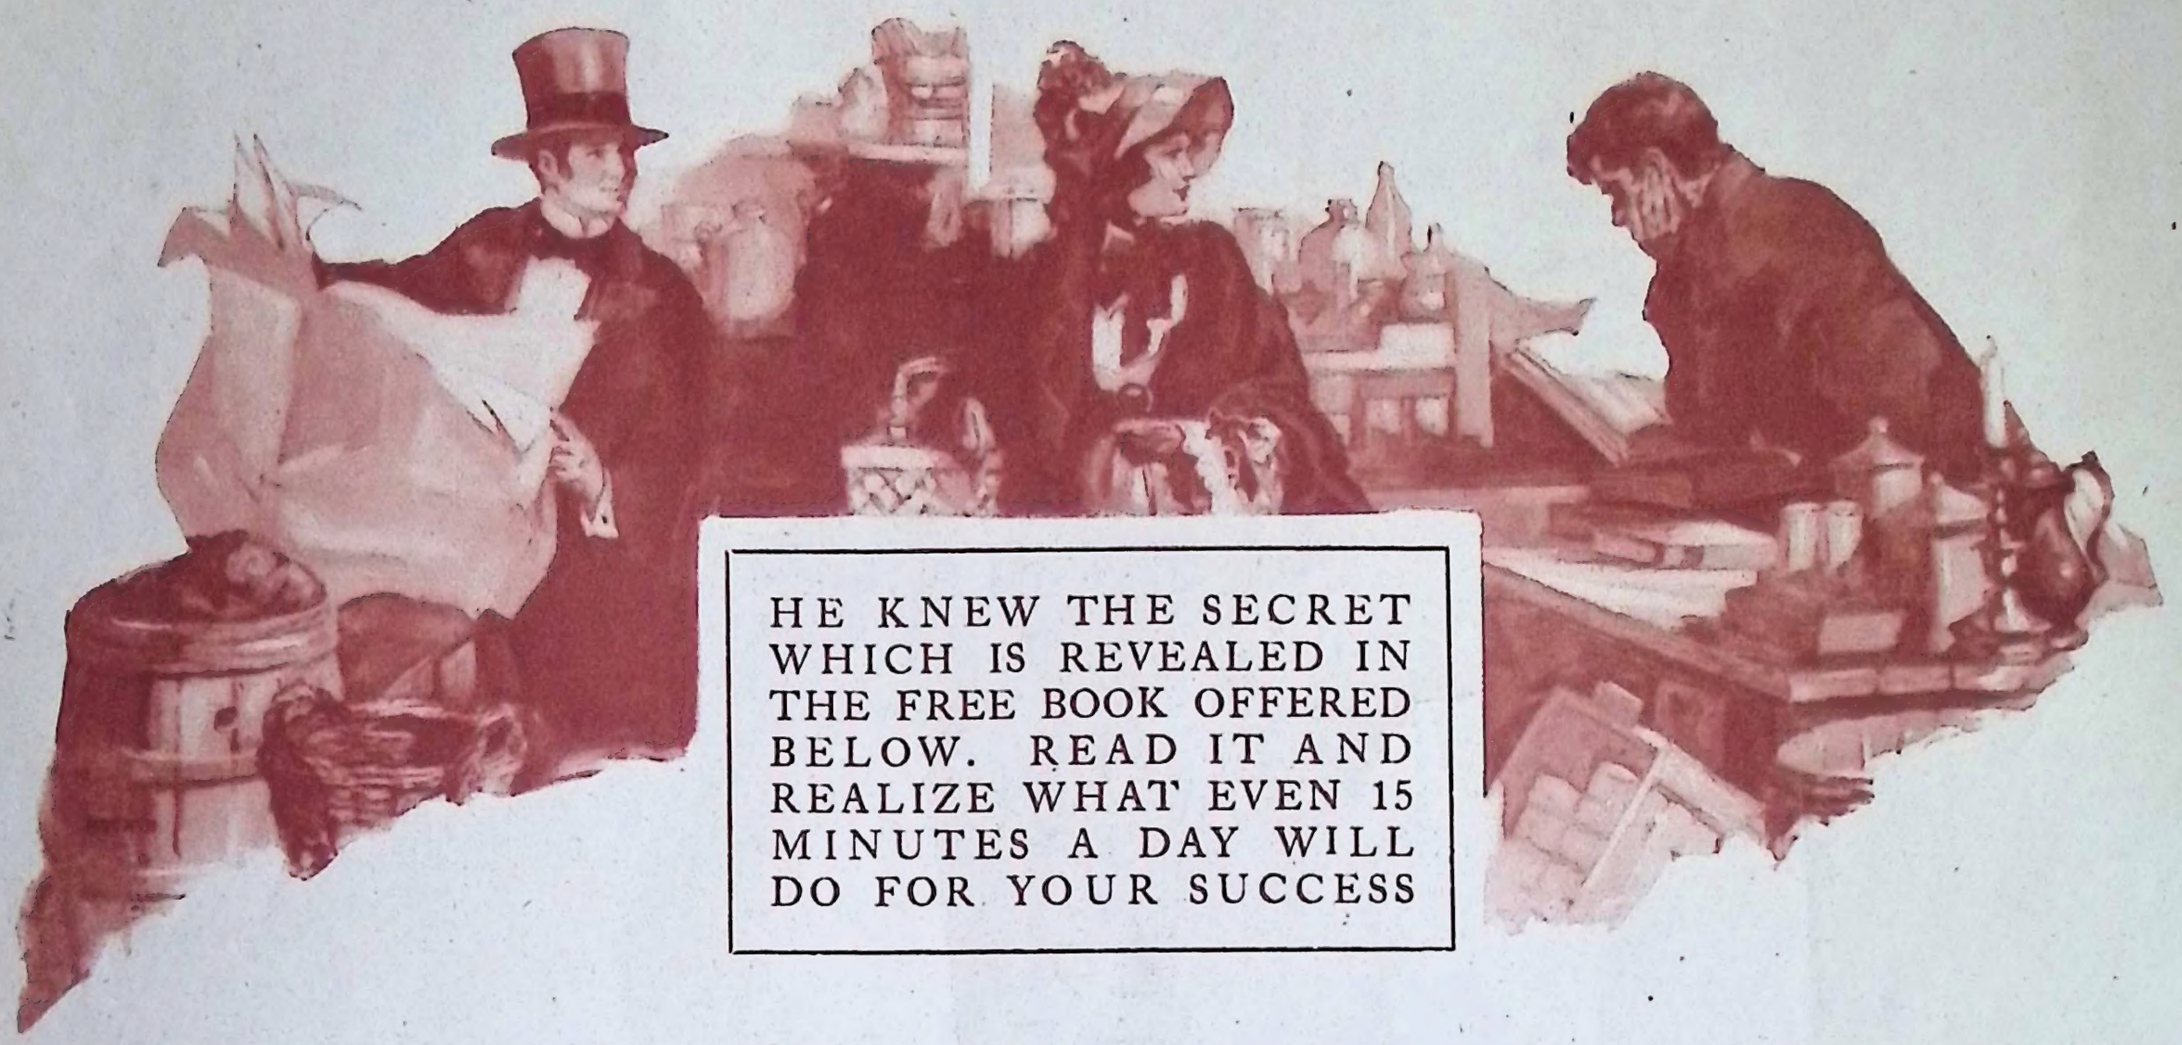
Full skirt with the swing accentuated by a heavy band of fur is shown in this dancing frock worn by Hope Hampton. It is of black taffeta, covered with a tracery of fine gold thread. The bodice, hardly more than a wide girdle, is finished with three bands of dull gold trimming.

Alice Calhoun, Vitagraph star, wears a jumper effect evening gown of opalescent sequins, with a flower design in blue beads. Tulle girdle in a huge bow at the side. Brocaded sandals and hose of silver. The only ornaments worn with this dress are a ring, bracelet and lavalier of diamonds and platinum. About each wrist is a bow of silver ribbon and she carries an ostrich feather fan of blue and silver.

Right—Bebe Daniels, Realart star, wearing an evening gown of black chantilly lace over black satin and copper metal ribbon.

Mary Miles Minter, Realart star, in a lavender satin crinoline model, trimmed with silver lace, applied in bow-knot design.
Photo by Donald Bibble Keyes.

The Clerk Whose Name Will Live Forever



HE KNEW THE SECRET WHICH IS REVEALED IN THE FREE BOOK OFFERED BELOW. READ IT AND REALIZE WHAT EVEN 15 MINUTES A DAY WILL DO FOR YOUR SUCCESS

TWO men lived in the same town a century ago; they knew the same people and had an equal chance in life.

One spent all his spare hours in idle talk or with the daily paper; he knew nothing beyond the day's news. The other brought to every subject a wealth of sidelight and illustration that kindled the interest of men and women, no matter where he went.

The name of the first man has long since been forgotten; the name of the other, the humble clerk in a country store, will live forever.

He talked like a man who had traveled, though his travels were confined to a few backwoods counties. He knew something of history and biography, of the work of great philosophers, poets and dramatists.

What was the secret of his wide range of knowledge? How can a man who must work every day in a routine job find time to make himself so interesting to other men and women? How can he, in odd moments, learn to think clearly and talk well?

His Secret Given to You

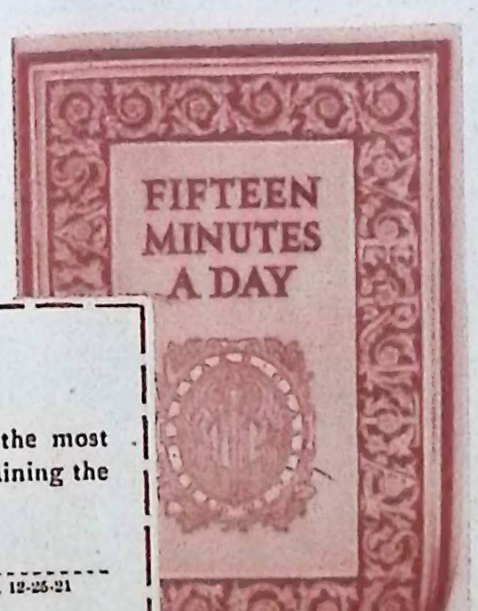
The answer is found in every biography, every anecdote of that greatest clerk. He owned a few great books and, in the odd moments between customers' calls, he read them systematically. It was the influence of those books that gave his mind its start; then lifted his eyes beyond the horizon of a backwoods town. Before he was fifty the whole nation knew the name and acknowledged the power of that humble, unschooled man. His name was Abraham Lincoln.

What are the few great mind-building books? Out of all the millions of volumes in the world, how shall a man know what and how to read? There is no more important question for you to ask yourself. It is answered in the free book offered below—a wonderfully interesting little book that tells the scope and plan of

Dr. Eliot's Five-Foot Shelf of Books

The Fascinating Path to a Liberal Education

Every well-informed man and woman should at least know something about this famous library. The free book tells about it. In a wonderfully interesting way it explains how Dr. Eliot, out of his life-time of training men for success—forty years as President of Harvard—selected the few great books that contain the essentials of all books—the "essentials," as he says, "of a liberal education."



Your Reading Problem Solved by Dr. Eliot

Discarding all the books that waste your time, he has combined these few great volumes together into a rounded library; he has arranged them with reading courses and footnotes so that even in 15 minutes of pleasant reading a day a man may master them.

Think of it—the knowledge of literature and life, the broad cultural viewpoint that every university strives to give—these may be yours in the pleasant spare moments of your active days. Make yourself a bigger, more interesting man or woman this year. Send for "Fifteen Minutes a Day."

"For me," wrote one man who had sent in the coupon, "your little free book meant a big step forward, and it showed me besides the way to a vast new world of pleasure."

Every reader of this page is invited to have a copy of this handsome and entertaining little book. It is free, will be sent by mail, and involves no obligation of any sort. Merely clip the coupon and mail it to-day.

P. F. Collier & Son Company

Publishers of Good Books Since 1875

Send for this FREE Booklet that gives Dr. Eliot's Own Plan of Reading

P. F. COLLIER & SON COMPANY
416 West Thirteenth Street, New York

By mail, absolutely free and without obligation, send me the little guide book to the most famous books in the world, describing Dr. Eliot's Five-Foot Shelf of Books, and containing the plan of reading recommended by Dr. Eliot of Harvard.

Name .....

M. P. S. 12-25-21

Address .....

ADVERTISEMENT

COPYRIGHT GRAVURE SERVICE CORP., 1921.